W. W. Norton & Company has been independent since its founding in 1923, when William Warder Norton and Herbert A. W. Norton first published lectures delivered at the People's Institute, the adult education division of New York University. The firm soon expanded its program beyond the Institute, publishing books by celebrated authors from America and abroad. By midcentury, the two major pillars of Norton's publishing program—trade books and college texts—were firmly established. In the 1950s, the Norton family transferred control of the company to its employees, and today—with a staff of four hundred and a comparable number of trade, college, and professional titles published each year—W. W. Norton & Company stands as the largest and oldest publishing house owned wholly by its employees.

Malala Yousafzai won the Nobel Peace Prize on Friday. Malala is a teenage girl who was shot by religious fighters. She had stood up against laws that stopped girls from getting an education in Pakistan.

She shared the important award with Indian children's rights supporter Kailash Satyarthi.

Malala is 17 years old. Satyarthi is 60.

Malala has become a symbol of hope in Pakistan. Girls there are sometimes killed by their own families if they dare to marry for love. They are also kept out of school in some communities.

When Pope Francis addresses a crowd of thousands at Philadelphia's Independence Hall next month, he will speak from the same lectern that slain U.S. President Abraham Lincoln used to deliver the Gettysburg Address, officials said on Friday.

The pope's address at Independence Hall will come on the second-to-last day of his first trip as Pontiff to the United States, after he will have spoken to the U.S. Congress and United Nations and before an open-air Sunday mass that is expected to draw up to 2 million attendees.
